Engaging Minds, Hearts, and Hands for Faith: Father Moreau's Vision for Education

Today is the anniversary of Blessed Father Moreau's death—although he died in 1873, his spirit and vision continue to live within us.

As a young man who grew up during the turmoil of the French Revolution, Basil Moreau had a conviction that peace, citizenship, and love, so unlike what he witnessed in the war, truly had a place in the world. Guided by his Catholic faith and love of learning, Moreau was ordained a priest in 1821 and began his lifelong mission of teaching the mind and the heart. Since his founding of the Congregation of Holy Cross in 1841, Father Moreau's mission has spread throughout the world, showing people of all ages how to live with their minds, hearts, and hands, and educating people wholly: mind and soul.

Catholic high schools in the United States affiliated with the Congregation of Holy Cross work consistently to educate students both intellectually and spiritually. As Father Moreau once attested: "Society has a greater need for people of values than it has for scholars." The mission of our Holy Cross schools in the world, clearly expresses a desire to live out Moreau's vision by "welcoming one another with the hospitality of Christ." The faculty and students of our school live out this commitment through their multiple community service projects, hospitality in welcoming new students, and dedication to academic excellence. It is modeled for us by our Faculty and Staff on a regular basis as they volunteer to participate to assist in our retreat programs and extracurricular activities. Notre Dame High School strives, like all Holy Cross schools, to honor the legacy of the Congregation of Holy Cross and Father Moreau.

This holistic approach to education sometimes seems out of sync with society's "survival of the fittest" mentality. Holy Cross educators and missionaries continue, however, to instill the values of Father Moreau into their students' lives. The Congregation of Holy Cross works, as Father Moreau envisioned, to not only teach students quantitative subjects, but how to behave as a disciple with "the competence to see and the courage to act." Whether it is simply leading by example or participating in religious retreats, Holy Cross students and educators allow Christ to enlighten their minds with intelligence, and, most importantly, they allow God to work in their lives as they truly become disciples.

Father Moreau's legacy and actions created a domino effect in Holy Cross education the world over, showing countless students, parents, and teachers the value of faith with knowledge. At the time of his beatification in 2007, after his intercession led a Canadian woman to be healed of lung disease, Father Moreau's ministry has spread to every corner of the world. His commitment to educating the heart and mind lives on through his followers.
